In Death Chamber Is Impressive

The Certificate of Death Filed Today.

FIRST MEETING OF CARDINALS HELD THIS MORNING

THE TELEGRAMS OF SYMPATHY

Are Arriving by the Thousands at The Vatican—Coming Conclave—Official Notice.

Rome, July 21.—(Bulletin)—The congregation of cardinals, at their session today, elected Mgr. Merry del Val secretary of the conclave. This is supposed to be a victory for Cardinal Oreglia, one of principal candidates for the papal chair.

Rome, July 21.—The cardinals now in Rome assembled in the consistory chapel this morning and held the first congregation of the internum. After the customary oath of secrecy had been taken, the prelates proceeded to transact the business connected with the affairs of the vatican between now and the consecration of the new pontiff. After this had been done, the formal decision to hold a conclave for the election of a new head of the church was arrived at.

Previous to assembling in the consistory hall the cardinals visited the remains of Pope Leo, which are protected by the noble guard and surrounded by the rugged penitentiaries of St. Peters. The scene in the chamber is impressive in the extreme. His holiness' remains lying on his couch covered with the brocade insignia of his office as cardinal while in his thin fingers a crucifix has been placed. Near the door stand the guard with their military attire, while immediately about the bed are assembled the penitentiaries who in low voices continuously chant a requiem to the dead.

Cardinal Oreglia in his capacity of Cardinal Camerlengo of the Holy See, viewed the remains of the late pontiff at 9:45 this morning. He found the face greatly sunken, even since yesterday. Afterward Oreglia signed the final papers certifying that his holiness was dead.

The noble guard this morning appeared in red gala uniform and extended regal honors to each of the cardinals signifying their collective reign during the interregnum beginning today.

The official certificate of the Pope's death filed today with the mayor of Rome by Dr. Laponi, the Pope's physician, gives the death as pneumonia with complications. The certificate reads:

"I have the sorrow to acquaint you that on July 20, at four in the afternoon his holiness, Leo XIII, was called. Cioacchini Peccle was born at Carpineto. He was aged 93 years, five months. He died at the Vatican palace of pneumonia, complicated with hemorrhagic pleurisy. (Signed.) 'LAPPONI.'"

Telegrams of sympathy are pouring into the Vatican by thousands. Among these was a message received from Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany in which he expressed his sincere sympathy "in the grievous loss which the Catholic church has sustained."

The late pontiff's body was embalmed under the supervision of Dr. Laponi at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It is probable that the remains of the Pope will be laid in state at the chapel of the Holy Sacrament tonight. At noon an official notice from the Cardinal Vicar was posted on all the church doors of Rome. It began:

"It is our duty, Romans, to fulfill the painful office" and then tells of the death of the Pope and recites Leo's services to the church. Holy orders are issued as follows:

First—The funeral services will be performed in St. Peters and as soon as possible the corpse will be placed according to custom in the chapel of the sacrament.

Second—Tonight all bells shall toll from 8 to 9.

Third—A mass and solemn prayers shall be said in all churches when the body is placed in St. Peters.

Fourth—All priests shall pray for the repose of the pontiff's soul.

Fifth—There shall be a repetition of the prayer "pro pontifici eligendo" until a new Pope is elected. Outside of the Vatican a few signs of mourning are visible. The immense bronze doors of the Vatican which were closed when the pontiff passed away have not been re-opened. Workmen are busy at St. Peters today erecting railings through which the crowd must pass to view the body.

COMING CONCLAVE.

Rome, July 21.—The newspapers today print an interview with Cardinal Svampa, Archbishop of Bologna, in which the coming conclave is foreshadowed. The cardinal says: "All the cardinals will be present at the conclave with the exception of Cardinal Moran, (Archbishop of Sydney) and Cardinal Langenieux, (Archbishop of Rheims). The latter is ill."

"Previous political enmities no longer exist among the cardinals and therefore concord in the selection will be easily obtained. The conclave will be short. The new Pope will introduce something new and original in his policy toward the question of temporal power which will differ from the program of his predecessor."

"Each great historical fact brings new conditions and the dawn of a new day illumines men and things with a new and rosy light."

The interview is thought to have great significance as indicating far-reaching changes in the policy of the Holy See.

CARDINAL GIBBONS.

Chicago, July 21.—Cardinal Gibbons is a logical candidate to succeed Pope Leo," said Justice Brewer of the U. S. Supreme Court.

"No wiser choice could be made. America is a constantly growing field for Catholic labor and it is a field that no one knows more intimately than Cardinal Gibbons."

COUNT CASSINI

Says United States Knew Jewish Petition Would be Rejected—Ambassador Talks of Manchuria.

Paris, July 20.—A representative of the Associated Press has had an interview with Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador to the United States, who is here with his daughter spending part of his leave of absence in Paris, where he has an apartment near the Champs Elysee. He said:

"It is not correct, as cabled, that I arranged, with Secretary Hay, before my departure, the question of open ports in Manchuria."

"It is true that Mr. Hay called on me June 28 but it was a friendly visit and entirely unofficial. The Manchurian ports were mentioned during our conversation, but no definite arrangement was completed."

"The conversation was quite cordial, courteous and friendly, but it did not go beyond that."

"I expect, however, that a mutually satisfactory understanding regarding Manchuria questions will eventually be reached between the two governments."

"Regarding the Israelite petition, the United States Government already knew that such a petition would not be received. No such petition would be received by any independent state. The United States, first of all, would not consent to any foreign interference in its domestic affairs."

TOLL BELLS FOR NINE DAYS.

Cincinnati, July 21.—Archbishop Elder has issued instructions to the clergy of his diocese in respect to observances in consequence of the death of Pope Leo XIII.

He directs the tolling of church bells at noon for nine days, immediately after the "Angelus," a requiem high mass in each church, pontifical high mass in the cathedral, July 28, prayers "Pro Eligendo Summo Pontifico" until a successor is elected and requests that churches be appropriately draped for 30 days.

Data of the Roman Papacy—St. Peter The Apostle Was the First Pope Ad 41-67.

St. Peter, the Apostle, was the first Pope, A. D. 41-67.

There have been 258 Popes.

There have been 33 Antipopes (claimants whose titles were never established).

There have been 9 Popes named Pius.

There have been 16 Popes named Gregory.

There have been 13 Popes named Leo.

There have been 14 Popes named Clement.

There have been 14 Popes named Benedict.

There have been 13 Popes named Innocent.

There have been 23 Popes named John.

St. Peter ruled the church 25 years.

Sylvester I. (314-336), 22 years.

Leo I. (440-461), 21 years.

Alexander III. (1159-1181), 22 years.

Urban VIII. (1623-1644), 21 years.

Clement IX. (1700-1721), 21 years.

Pius VI. (1775-1800), 25 years.

Pius VII. (1800-1823), 23 years.

Pius IX. (1846-1878), 32 years.

Leo XIII. (1878-1903), 25 years.

Theodoros (897) was Pope 20 days.

Damascus was Pope 23 days.

Celestine V. (1294) was Pope six months.

Clement II. was Pope less than one year.

St. Stephen II. (752) died before he was consecrated.

Martin I. was deposed 653.

John XII. was deposed 963.

Gregory XII. was deposed 1409.

Alexander V. was deposed 1410.

John XXIII. was deposed 1415.

Adrian IV. (1154-1159) was an Englishman named Breakspere.

There have been three German Popes.

There has been one Portuguese Pope.

There have been ten French Popes, including six when the Papal court was removed to Avignon in 1305-1370.

The Popes during over 400 years have been Italians.

The Papal office has always been elective. In the earliest days the Bishops, clergy and people participated in the election. Later the people's part was confined to an acceptance or rejection of the choice of the Bishops and clergy, and gradually the power to choose was vested in the higher body. With the growth of the College of Cardinals that body became the sole elective power. This was made the absolute rule by Nicholas II., in 1059. At that time any person was eligible, but since then it has become more and more the rule that the successor be a Cardinal.

One Pope maintained the right to appoint his successor. Boniface II., in 530, got the synod to sanction his appointment and he nominated Virgilius. A later synod revoked the decree and Boniface himself consigned the document to the flames. Virgilius, however, was afterwards elected Pope and ruled from 540 to 555 A. D.

The temporal power of the Pope began in 1115, when Matilda, Countess of Tuscany, bequeathed her domain to the Holy See. It embraced a quarter of Italy, and was the genesis of the States of the Church—the last to be wrested from the Pope, as well as the first to come under his civil rule. Other pious people followed her example, and under the forceful rule of Gregory VII, the temporal power of the church was almost supreme throughout Europe. It afterward declined, and was completely overthrown by Napoleon, only to be restored by the Congress of Vienna, in 1815. The church lost its last vestige of civil authority when Victor Emmanuel captured Rome, in 1870, and made it the capital of United Italy.

Four Killed.

Galt, Ont., July 21.—A rear-end collision occurred on the Canadian Pacific railroad this morning between two freights. Two cars were thrown into the river. Four bodies have been recovered so far.

Robert H. Quick was killed by a B. & O. flyer near Tiffin.

Great crowds greeted King Edward in Dublin today. Unbounded enthusiasm was shown the King.

CHILD

Accused of Theft at Cleveland

A Remarkable Robbery Is Reported to Police

MONEY AND JEWELS HAVE BEEN RECOVERED

BUT YOUNG GIRL IS MISSING

Mrs. Frank Butler Says that She Was Assaulted With Slugshot and Robbed of $600.

Cleveland, O., July 21.—A remarkable robbery of $600 worth of diamonds and $34 in money by a girl about 13 years old, was reported to the police today. Money and jewels were recovered and Mrs. Anna Bramley is locked up at Central Station charged with receiving stolen property. Mrs. Frank Butler told the police that her diamonds and money had been stolen. She said she had asked a little daughter of a neighbor to run an errand for her Monday and that soon after the child returned Mrs. Butler fell asleep on the lounge.

When she woke up at midnight, she says, the jewels, concealed in a chamber bag in her dress were gone. She ran to the girl's home, she says, and after a struggle, forced the mother, Mrs. Bramley, to give her the diamonds. During the struggle, the daughter whom Mrs. Butler accuses assaulted her, she says, with a slug shot. Failing to get the money she appealed to the police. Patrolman Bayton accompanied her to Mrs. Bramley's house, recovered the money and bag and locked up Mrs. Bramley. The slug shot, made from a section of rubber hose, was found in the house and taken to the station. The police are looking for the girl accused by Mrs. Butler.

GOLD BULLION

Valued at $10,000 Stolen in Oregon by Masked Men.

Baker City, Ore., July 21.—Three masked men held up Captain Myrick, of the Connor Creek mine, 18 miles from Huntington, and at the point of a pistol compelled him to open the office safe. Gold bullion valued at $10,000 and a considerable sum in cash were taken. A posse is in pursuit of the robbers.

A PET HOG

Animal Sleeps on Rug, Follows Owner to Church and Guards the House—A Woman's Queer Pet.

English Ind., July 21.—Mrs. Ellen Canby, an aged, childless widow, has a pig for a pet and the animal seems to show genuine affection for her. Biddy, as she calls the pet, was one of a too numerous family and a gift to the widow.

Biddy weighs about 400 pounds and during the last week Mrs. Canby refused to let her out of the house. She never forgets the limit of her privilege. She always follows her mistress to the door of the grocery, or to the neighbor's residence when Mrs. Canby occasionally visits, but never resumes upon entrance. Mrs. Canby always carries a rug for her pet on such occasions and Biddy is kept as cleanly as possible. She is always well come. ## CONVENTION

Of Public Service Boards to Suggest Municipal Code Changes Advocated by President Stollberg.

Toledo, O., July 21.—President John Stollberg, of the Toledo Board of Public Service, has started a movement to hold a convention of the Boards of Public Service of all the cities of over 10,000 population for the purpose of considering the new code. He has instructed Secretary Harry Jones, of the Toledo Board, to prepare a call for such a convention. W. J. Springhorn of the Cleveland Board, has promised to co-operate with Mr. Stollberg.

Mr. Stollberg says: "There are many defects in the new code which are showing up daily, and I believe that an organized attempt to right the inconsistencies of the code would be of much good. It would be the purpose of the convention to investigate all wrongs and make their organization effective by reporting back unanimously to the local members of the Legislature with instructions to them to vote for changes as reported by this convention."

"One of the glaring errors of the code lies in the fact that members of the Board of Public Service are elected for the same term, so that with the expiration of the term of one man they all expire, thus making it possible that new men entirely would be elected. This should be changed so that two members of the board would be old in service at all times."

The place and time of holding the convention will be determined at a meeting to be held here later in the week. It will probably be held in Columbus or Toledo.

BUFFALO TRAGEDY

Has Furnished the Plot for a Very Sensational Melodrama.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 21.—The efforts which Mrs. Edwin L. Burdick is now making by her present secluded life in her Ashland avenue home to live down the memory of her connection with the famous tragedy is being forcibly counteracted by a melodrama put on at a local theatre this afternoon. The play is entitled "Over the Quarry Brink." It is founded on the great Buffalo mystery.

Edwin L. Burdick, the murdered man, is Edward Bradshaw of the piece, and written about this character is a story, sensational at times to the extent of being disgusting, of a husband, wronged by his wife and finally murdered by one of her colleagues. Under the veil of other names the lives of Mrs. Burdick, Arthur Pennell, Mrs. Hull and others are dragged into publicity. Attempts to reproduce the murder and quarry scenes are also made.

RARE SPECIMEN

Of Tropical Snake, With Two Heads, Found in California.

San Francisco, July 21.—A double-headed snake that can back up as readily as it can move forward has been added to the natural history department of the Memorial Museum. It is about 32 inches long, about as broad as the handle of the tableknife, with the tail blunt at the end. It belongs to a wholly tropical species called Amphisbaena, defined as "a species of tropical lizard distinguished by the obtuseness of the head and tail." The reptile hitherto has been only found in South America and the West Indies. The specimen just presented to the museum was found at Half Moon Bay in this state.

FEDERATION

Plan Has Been Rejected—Flint Glass Men Adjourn and Bottle Blowers Are About Through.

Cincinnati, July 21.—After a continuous session of two weeks the annual convention of the American Flint Glass Workers' association adjourned. There was little of general interest that transpired at the final meeting, the principal matter considered being the report of the committee which had been appointed to confer with the Bottle Blowers' association on the question of consolidating the two national organizations. A number of propositions and counter-propositions were made by both sides on this subject, but the project fell through, neither organization being willing to sink its identity or surrender even a part of its jurisdiction and autonomy in a merger.

President Rowe and the Conference Committee appointed by the convention to meet the representatives of the manufacturers' left for Star Island, Mich., last night, where a conference will be held today and the revised price lists and scales will be presented for the employers' acceptance.

The new lists will represent a demand for an average increase of about 10 per cent, which it is expected will be allowed by the Manufacturers' committee.

The convention of the Bottle Blowers' association after disposing of the matter of federation, spent the day in hearing the final reports of the committee on laws, apprentices and appeals and grievances.

The final session will be devoted to the election of officers and selection of place for holding the next annual convention.

Only two cities, Buffalo and St. Louis have so far been mentioned, with the chances largely in favor of the former.

BY HAIL

Enormous Damage Done to Crops in Iowa and Wisconsin.

Sheldon, Iowa, July 21.—A severe hailstorm struck Sheldon yesterday afternoon. The storm was about ten miles wide. It lasted but 15 minutes, but did $100,000 damage in the country. The stones were the size of nutmegs and drifted in some places 10 inches deep.

Thousands of acres of good crops between Sibley and Watertown were badly damaged.

In Pipestone county, Wis., all vegetation in a path 15 miles wide and 30 miles long was destroyed.

SHACKLED,

Four Convicts Are Driven Into the Ocean for Their Weekly Bath and One Drowns.

Savannah, Ga., July 21.—Loaded with balls and chains a gang of Chatham county convicts was driven into the surf at Tibee for a weekly bath, and in consequence one of them was drowned. It has been the custom of the guards to drive the convicts into the ocean once a week with their shackles on.

The convicts have protested against being sent into the surf loaded with balls and chains, but without avail. Yesterday the convicts were driven in where the under tow is very strong, and four of them were swept off their feet. Three were rescued by fellow convicts, but the fourth, Charles Walker, weighed down by iron, lost his life.

Walker's body was cast upon Screven Island late this afternoon. The chain encircled his waist and was clasped about his ankle.

King in Ireland.

Dublin, July 21.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra today reached Irish shores on their visit which promises to tend much toward welding together the hearts of Englishmen and Irishmen. Despite reports to the contrary and acts of some malcontents, the Irish people in general are ready to accord their king a truly royal welcome. The buildings of Dublin are profusely decorated and everything indicates that the welcome to Edward will be on a much larger scale than that accorded his mother, Queen Victoria, when she last visited Ireland.

King Edward has canceled the gala performance at Theatre Royal on Friday, as a mark of respect to the memory of Pope Leo XIII.

Big Hail Storm.

South City, Ia., July 21.—Complete reports indicate that the hailstorm yesterday evening throughout eastern South Dakota, southwestern Minnesota and western Iowa, was the most destructive since 1891. Hail as large as walnuts fell in many places six inches deep and killed sheep and poultry and damaged growing crops.

Negro Lynched

Pine Bluff, Ark., July 21.—Cain Green, colored, was lynched five miles from Kingsland. Green assaulted a 13 year old white child Saturday.

EWEN

Reached Jackson In Ice Box

Testified Today Before the Grand Jury.

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS ARE EXPECTED

CAPT. EWEN WANTED TO KNOW

Result of the Arson Case Before Taking up Bribery But Request Was Not Granted.

Jackson, Ky., July 21.—Capt. B. J. Ewen is here and heavy guard is stationed about his house in South Jackson. Last night when the train came in from Lexington and he did not alight, it was said he would not come until today. At one o'clock this morning a messenger arrived at the camp, and stated that Captain Ewen wanted a guard. Several men were sent to his home and remained there until this morning, when they were relieved and a strong guard placed about the house. It develops that Captain Ewen came here concealed in an old ice chest and remained in an express car in the railroad yards until one o'clock alone. He then got out and went to the home of his family unaccompanied.

He will testify before the grand jury today and will leave on the afternoon train. He says he will not take the bribery case before the grand jury unless some action is taken in the arson case which is now being considered and in which he is not a witness.

About 2:30 o'clock this morning a camp alarm was sounded by two shots fired by the provost guard, because of a small fire.

The grand jury will hear evidence in all the charges before making its report. Captain Ewen sent a friend to Commonwealth's attorney Byrd, this morning and told that he would like to know the result of the arson case before he appeared before the jury in the bribery case, but he was told that the entire evidence would be expected before any report is made on any charge. Captain Ewen says he will go ahead and place his case before the jury now that he is here, telling all he knows, both in the bribery and the Dr. Cox assassination cases. Sensational developments are expected.

TRIBUTE

Paid to the Dead Pope by Prominent Men—Below is What They Have To Say.

New York, July 21.—These tributes are paid the dead pontiff:

Mayor Low, New York—He filled the position with dignity and authority. Bishop Hogan, Kansas City—His work on earth was done. He is now in heaven.

Bishop Horstmann, Cleveland—Greatest man of the nineteenth century.

Archbishop Falconi, Apostolic Delegate at Washington—World loses lover and protector of right and justice.

Monsignor Mooney, New York—Deepest Latin scholar of the age.

Archbishop Elder, Cincinnati—He has been a light from heaven.

Rector O'Connell, Washington University—The university loses its founder and greatest friend.

Hall Caine—A great statesman and a great Pope.

Bishop Muldoon, Chicago—His labors created new atmosphere about papacy.

Archbishop Quigley, Chicago—He has thrown defense of God and his church upon enlightened democracy of Catholic church.

Bishop J. J. Glennon, St. Louis—No man in past two decades had such influence for good.

Bishop Pitarval, Santa Fe—World loses its greatest ruler.

Archbishop Ryan, Philadelphia—His sympathy for the American constitution was genuine.

FUGITIVE

Alleged Horse Thief Pursued by Officers at Delaware Was Shot but Made His Escape.

Delaware, O., July 21.—Chief of Police Matthews and Officer Kiser of this city, aided by a large posse of citizens residing near Old Eden, this county, indulged in a man hunt yesterday.

Word was received that George Miller, wanted in Marion, O., for horse-stealing, was at the home of his brother-in-law near the hamlet of Old Eden.

The officers drove to the place and the man was located in a blackberry patch. He was given a tip by his sister, however, and took to the woods, the officers in pursuit.

Both officers took a flying shot at the fugitive near the quarry, the man being hit each time, falling to the ground but rising and continuing his flight. He finally disappeared in a thicket and was lost.

The officers returned to this city, but the posse continued the search. Miller has not been apprehended.

MRS. DOLLY

Sister of Attorney Winn of Zanesville Dies in Pueblo, Colorado—Burial At Newark.

Zanesville, O., July 21.—Attorney S. M. Winn received a telegram announcing the death of his sister, Mrs. Martha Dolly, wife of Charles Dolly, at her home in Pueblo, Colo. The remains will be brought to Newark, the former home of the deceased, for interment.

The deceased leaves her husband, who was formerly a passenger conductor on the B. & O. and the following brothers and sister: Attorney S. M. Winn, H. R. Winn and Mrs. Hattie Walters of this city; Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conaway and H. N. Winn of Troy, Kas.; F. S. Winn of Perry, Okla.; and R. J. Winn of Judsonia, Ark.

Mrs. Dolly was 63 years of age. A child that died in infancy is buried at Newark.

DRUGGIST'S FINE

Leads to Rioting in an Ohio Town—Beal Law Is Held Responsible For the Trouble.

Springfield, O., July 21.—Charles Ridgely, a druggist at Cedarville, was fined $500 and costs for violation of the Beal law.

This was the beginning of his troubles. Immediately afterward he was arrested on the charge of inciting a riot, and bound over to the grand jury.

It is said that Ridgely employed three colored men, Link Phillips, Ellis McMillen and John Spencer, to give J. H. Little and Wrex Anderson, the star witnesses for the state, a good beating.

The two men were attacked and for some time there was a regular riot.

When the crowd gathered, the negroes were compelled to flee for their lives.

They were arrested last night and placed in jail.

Several arrests have been made and the people are greatly excited over the contest concerning the enforcement of the Beal local option law.

Ridgely has closed his soda fountain in order to spite the temperance people.

NEW POTTERY PLANT.

Somerset, O., July 21.—The Somerset Brick and Pottery Co. is a new industrial enterprise which has just been organized here with local capital. The company is capitalized at $25,000 with the following officers: President, William J. Snider; vice president, J. W. Baumann; treasurer, William Gordon; and secretary and manager, Jacob Mottz. The company expects to erect its plant at once and begin operation in a few months.

NEW GLASS FACTORY.

Utica, O., July 21.—This place is to have a new glass factory. The company to build it was organized in Indiana the past week. It is to be a co-operative concern in which a number of capitalists have taken stock. The capital is $50,000. Samuel McKittick, of Sandusky, Ohio, is president of the company.

"WORKED" THE DOOR

At Idlewilde all Evening Each Man Supposing the Other Had Given Him the Job—A Stranger and His Nerve at Newark Park.

It takes "nerve" to get along in the world and the more some people display the better they come out in the long run. There may be many motives that prompt an exhibition of this quality, but the one at Idlewilde Park some days ago was the result of a man being a "crank" on the subject of theatres and what pertains to them.

The show in the casino was about to commence, with Otis Morris taking tickets on the door. The crowd was large and difficult to handle, but Mr. Morris was getting along very well, when a man who was a stranger to him came up and calmly taking his place told Morris to do something else. Thinking that Manager Harris or Mr. Roskam had hired the man, Morris gave him his place and went about doing something else.

Soon afterward Manager Harris came along and noticed the new ticket taker working like an old timer, and thinking the regular man had stepped away for a few minutes, said nothing to him. Pretty soon Mr. Roskam passed and he also saw the stranger, but said nothing to him as he supposed Mr. Harris had put him to work.

After the crowd had been handled and the ticket taker had handed in the result of his work, Mr. Harris said to Mr. Roskam:

"Charlie, who was that new man on the door tonight?"

"Why, I don't know him, I supposed you had put him to work," replied Roskam.

Mr. Morris was then called in and he said he did not know the fellow, but had given way to him, thinking that either Harris or Roskam had put him to work.

Thus a man who was an absolute stranger to all interested parties had gone on a theatre door, displaced the regular man "worked" the door all evening, reported and settled with the management and his name even is not known.

He is a Newark man, however, and his "nerve" is of the inoffensive kind that comes from an absorbing interest in any one subject, which was a theatre with him.

BAPTISTS

Assembling at Mt. Vernon in Large Numbers—The Regular Bible Work Taken Up Today.

Mt. Vernon, O., July 21.—The tenth annual meeting of the Ohio Baptist assembly opened at Lake Hiawatha park last evening with a concert by the Whitney Brothers. Today the regular Bible work was taken up and continued daily for ten days.

The attendance this year will be almost double that of any preceding year ever known on the opening day. All the tents are occupied and hundreds of visitors are being quartered in the Mt. Vernon Academy building, which has been leased for two weeks by the management of the assembly.

Among yesterday's arrivals were 60 Columbus people, who are occupying tents on the hill in the west side of the park. This delegation will have its own dining headquarters and will also establish a separate camp headquarters.

The delegations from Newark, Cranville, Zanesville, Elyria, Lorain, Cleveland and many other cities are large. All the officers are on the grounds and many of the workers are now arriving.

STATE MADSTONE

Used on a Woman Now Suffering From Blood Poison.

Columbus, O., July 21.—Several weeks ago Mrs. Waugh, of this city, was bitten by a dog. She applied at the relic room of the statehouse to have the so-called madstone in the collection of curiosities there applied to the wound. The custodian gravely applied the relic to the incisions and the woman went away thinking that science had exhausted itself for her benefit. Now it turns out that she is suffering and in grave danger from a bad case of blood poisoning, brought on by neglect due to the fancied security induced by the madstone.

Secretary Probst, of the State Board of Health, has once more made his announcement that the madstone is useless to ward off any disease, and especially hydrophobia. The medical profession is aroused, and wants the madstone kept in the glass case where it belongs.

NEW COLLEGE PRESIDENT.

Cincinnati, July 21.—A new president is to be chosen for the University of Cincinnati. Of the nine members of the Board of Directors five are out-spoken in their opposition to President Howard Ayres, and Dr. Ransohoff openly stated at the meeting yesterday that the feeling is unanimous that Dr. Ayres is not the man for the place.

NEW GAS WELL.

Mt. Vernon, July 21.—The Larimore well, one mile south of Homer, owned by the Logan company, which was a half million well, was shot Saturday and developed a flow of 3,000,000.

STROKE OF PARALYSIS.

Jersey, O., July 21.—Mrs. Jerome Condit is quite ill at her home having had a slight stroke of paralysis one day last week.

ARREST

Of a Pataskala Hotel Proprietor on The Charge of Illegal Selling of Whiskey.

Pataskala, O., July 21.—Geo. M. Cook, proprietor of the hotel at Pataskala, was arrested this morning for selling liquor contrary to the village ordinances. Mr. Cook pleaded not guilty and the trial was set for hearing Thursday at one o'clock. Smythe & Smythe are for Cook, Judge Taylor is for the prosecution.

KILLED ONE HURT SEVERAL

Dennison, O., July 21.—The air brake on a Royal Southern railroad engine failed to work and it crashed into a box car, killing Elizabeth Taylor, aged 77, and injuring Louis Gray, Jefferson Murphy, Thomas Patterson and Peter Spielma, employees of the Royal Sewer Pipe works.

COSHOCOTON NOTES.

Coshocoton, O., July 21.—The cornerstone of the New English Lutheran church will be laid Sunday, August 2. Rev. John Biltman was attacked by rowdies, being struck from behind, but drove off his assailants. There was no police action.

HAS BLOOD POISONING.

Zanesville, O., July 21.—Edward Hagerty, the 9 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hagerty of Shawnee, was brought to the City hospital here suffering from blood poisoning in the knee, the result of a Fourth of July accident.

GREAT GAME COMING.

The coming baseball event of the season—the game between the picked nines from the Tribune and Advocate forces, is being anticipated with a great deal of interest. The teams on each side are practicing daily with great enthusiasm, and as intense rivalry exists between them there is blood in the eyes of every one of the eighteen men who will play. The Advocate does not care to indulge in any predictions in regard to the matter, or vain glorying before the event. The Advocate merely says that they will be there when the game is called, and that they mean business. The game promises to be the swiftest and most interesting played on the diamond in Newark this season.

New Railroad Mileage.

The figures of new railroad mileage completed during the first half of 1903 show that the greatest extension was in Oklahoma, 240 miles, next Texas with 205 miles and third the Indian Territory with 203 miles. All of the older states were behind these, even New York reporting only two miles and a half of new road. The figures indicate that the principal railway extensions during the next few years will probably be in the southwestern and northwestern states.

The Despised Catfish.

A man in Maine recently shipped to England 200 barrels of "catfish." The well known marsh weed. Over there they use the downy floss of the head for filling fine sofa pillows and cushions. Over here the stuff has no commercial value. Even a weed, it appears, is not without honor save in its own country.

VISIT TO LEO

AMERICAN PRIEST'S AUDIENCE WITH LATE POPE

The Ceremony Was Simply Conducted—There Was no Great Degree of Formality.

The Rev. Father Thomas A. Hendrick, rector of St. Bridget's church, in Rochester, N. Y., a regent of the University of the State of New York and now prominently before the public as bishop elect of Cebu in the Philippine Islands, was admitted to a private audience with Leo XIII. last August, says the New York Tribune. With Father Hendrick at the time was Richard Kerens of St. Louis. Father Hendrick in speaking of the audience said:

Both Mr. Kerens and myself shall always deem ourselves exceptionally favored in the matter of our audience with the holy father. It is generally the case that applications for a personal audience with the pope are subject to delays, sometimes ten or twelve days passing before a reply is received. Mr. Kerens and myself made formal application on Aug. 13 and were surprised to receive a summons the following day for a personal audience on Aug. 15. It has always been my opinion that the fact that we were Americans had something to do with this promptness in the consideration of our request, for another section of our party which had been delayed at Venice and arrived in Rome a day subsequent to our advent was likewise admitted after a delay of only twenty-four hours.

The ceremonial connected with an audience is not marked with any great degree of formality. We were met at the entrance to the Vatican by the Swiss guard in gorgeous uniforms, designed, it is said, by Michael Angelo and worn by them ever since. We were politely requested to leave upon a table such things as canes, umbrellas, and especially cameras. From this hall we were ushered into a larger apartment, where our hats were deposited. Thence we were piloted through a long succession of smaller chambers until the anteroom was reached. The persons preceding us were closeted with his holiness for a brief period, probably not more than a quarter of an hour. Our audience lasted for about that length of time. As I entered the chamber where the pope was awaiting our coming I was impressed by its almost Spartan plainness. Everything was of the utmost simplicity. Besides the ordinary chair in which the pope was seated there was not another piece of furniture to be seen, nor even a picture or a carpet on a rug. The outer office of many a lawyer or business man is palatial in comparison to that little chamber in which the head of the Roman Catholic church throughout the world received his children. But there was no need of such things. Leo himself filled the room with his presence and magnetic personality. His frame was slender and shrunken and his skin like fine parchment, but when I looked in his eyes and felt their brilliant fire burning through my very mind I forgot all else.

According to the usage, we knelt reverently and kissed the silver cross upon the holy father's slipper. He then addressed me in the pure and liquid Latin of Cicero. He had heard that I was a regent of the University of New York, and with that power of grasping the details of unfamiliar things he showed that he understood what this meant.

"The cause of education is of the greatest importance to the state," Leo said, "and for this reason I bless every institution under your care. I am much pleased with the great and generous American people, who saw fit to elect you, a Roman Catholic priest, to such a position of trust. It shows they recognize the value of a Christian education, and because they have recognized such qualifications in you I, too, am sure that by you the Christian education of young boys and girls will not be neglected."

Leo impressed me as a man of great kindness of heart, simplicity of manner and tremendous reserve of will power. There was nothing of ponderous gravity about him. On the contrary, he seemed the soul of good humor. He smiled broadly as he caught sight of a pile of religious objects I had brought to him to be blessed. When I told him they were for my congregation he murmured, "Good, good!" The holy father speaks with an Italian freedom and grace. Once he threw out his hand toward me, and I, mistaking his intention, took it reverently in mine. He smiled like a father, pressed my forehead and palm firmly and gently and alleviated my confusion. The master of the chamber, who was standing beside him, with difficulty suppressed a smile himself, but when he saw how pleasantly the pope received what he probably considered a familiarity such as one might expect from Americans his expression changed immediately.

At the time of our audience the pope looked very old and wrinkled, but the wonderful energy of his voice and gestures and the fire in his eyes impressed the beholder as those of a man still young in heart and strength.

All Out.

$5,000. Reward for the Arrest and Conviction of——the parties who originated and circulated, the rumor that "Force" Food contained drugs or other injurious ingredients.

$5,000. additional will be paid to anyone proving that "Force" does, or ever did, contain any drug or other injurious or unhealthy ingredient, being composed solely of Wheat and Barley, with a seasoning of table salt, steam cooked, flaked, and roasted.

Do us the justice, if you question the absolute purity or healthfulness of "Force," to send a package to the Health Department of your city for analysis.

The "FORCE" Food Company. BUFFALO, N. Y.

Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

Boston, June 25, 1903.

The "Force" Food Company, Buffalo, N. Y.: Gentlemen—A rumor having reached me that your product, "FORCE," contained injurious ingredients, I took the occasion to analyze it, in the interest of my own family and of some friends who are liberal users of it.

It may interest you to know that I found it consisted exclusively of Whole Wheat, Barley and Salt, and is absolutely free from any injurious elements whatever.

Permit me to express my sincere regret that such a serious and baseless rumor should gain footing with the public.

You are free to use this letter in any way that will help to do your product justice.

Yours truly,

Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

Boston, June 30, 1903.

To Whom It May Concern: At the invitation of The "FORCE" Food Company, of Buffalo, I have visited their mills and made a careful examination of the materials from which "FORCE" is prepared, and the processes which convert it into its finished condition.

I found that "FORCE" consists exclusively of what my previous analysis indicated, viz.: Whole Wheat and Barley, with a flavoring of Table Salt, baked, cooked and sterilized by 300 degrees of heat. A feature of the manufacture which impressed me favorably was the fact that the process is entirely mechanical, the food being prepared, cooked and baked by machinery, without ever coming in contact with the hands or clothing of the mill operatives.

I was also gratified to note that an experienced chemist daily supervised the entire output, and that each day's manufacture was also tested by an expert cook.

Signed, WILBUR L. SCOVILLE, Professor of Theory and Practice of Chemistry.

Chemical Laboratory, University of Buffalo, HERBERT M. HILL, Ph. D., Analytical Chemist and Assayer.

June 26, 1903.

The "Force" Food Company, Buffalo, N. Y.: Gentlemen—In view of the rumors regarding the alleged adulteration of "FORCE" it has been a satisfaction to me to visit your mills, investigate, and analyze your product.

You are free to publish this statement made over my signature, that I found "FORCE" to be absolutely pure, consisting solely of Whole Wheat and Barley, flavored with table salt, and free from any injurious substance whatever.

I examined, in detail, the various steps in the manufacture of your product, such as the steam cooking, the flaking and the roasting, as well as the packing, and find all to be remarkably clean and of absolute healthfulness. The final roasting is done at a temperature above 300° F., which, with the steam cooking, completely sterilizes the product, and the entire process, from the first step to the final scaling of the package, is a mechanical one, the product at no time coming in contact with the hands or clothing of the persons handling the machines or packages.

Very respectfully, HERBERT M. HILL, Chemist to the City of Buffalo.

See page 148 of "Cereal Breakfast Foods," Bulletin No. 84, of the Maine Experiment Station, a State Institution, which has analyzed "FORCE" with other foods, in the public interests.

Copy will be mailed free on request. Refer also to Canadian Government Bulletin 84 on similar subject, pages 6 and 39, for analysis showing that "FORCE" consists solely of the most wholesome and nutritious ingredients.

Any inquiries concerning this subject will be cheerfully answered by

THE "FORCE" FOOD COMPANY, Buffalo, N. Y.

BADLY BURNED

Were the Author of "When Knight-hood Was in Flower" and Wife.

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 21.—

Charles H. Major, of Indianapolis, author of "When Knighthood was in Flower," arrived with his wife at the Island House yesterday afternoon, and a few hours later both met with a serious accident. Mrs. Major heated a curling iron over an alcohol lamp and set a celluloid comb on fire. The flames burned her hair, arms and hands.

Mr. Major rushed in and in extinguishing the fire burned his arms and hands. Dr. G. G. Bailey dressed the injuries and at 9 o'clock last evening the patients were out of danger.

Brutally Tortured.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equalled. Joe Golobick of Colusa, Calif., writes: "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." A HOLSTEIN BULL SAVES BOY'S LIFE

Bound Brook, N. J., July 21.—The four year old boy of Chas. M. Bandell owes his life to a Holstein bull. The child, with his brother, went fishing. The younger child fell into the water and the brother ran to tell his father. When the father reached the spot he was dumbfounded to see the little fellow being dragged out of the water by the bull, which had been standing in the brook.

The child had clutched at the bull's tail. The frightened animal rushed from the brook dragging the boy with it.

Mrs. Elizabeth McCormick, the alleged long distance murderer of J. B. Ficken, a Cincinnati expressman, and the poisoner of three of his comrades is now free. The bottle was broken in the express office and Ficken and his companions drank the liquor.

IT'S ALL ABOUT A HEN.

Mrs. John Farmer who lives on Ramp creek, in Union township has a hen which is a curiosity, and has been attracting more attention among the neighbors, than any other one thing in that community. The hen is of ordinary farm stock, and was hatched about last March 22. She is neither diminutive nor exceptionally large for her age, but she bids for distinction along other lines. When only about three months old the hen stole a nest and laid an egg and since that time she has laid nearly every day, having produced 14 eggs thus far. Whenever the nest is disturbed the fowl will not return but seeks to steal away and find another depository for her eggs, which are of course smaller than the ordinary size, and are being carefully saved and will be set.

It is considered remarkable if a hen lays under 6 months after she is hatched, and the fowl belonging to Mrs. Fanner is considered unique, and no one has ever heard of anything like her in the country.

Presidential Candidates.

We have watched with considerable interest the progress of the Parker movement in the Democratic party of the South, as to the probability of the selection of the chief justice as the Democratic candidate next year. We cannot see that it is encouraging, for no fervor or enthusiasm was manifested on his behalf on his recent visit to Georgia. Judge Parker did all that was in his power to properly please; he is admitted to be a fine jurist, if not a great one. An observer records this impression: "Some people say former Senator Hill is cold, but he is not as cold as Judge Parker. This is not conclusive, for undemonstrative men sometimes turn out very strong men on a clear test under favorable conditions.

But although Parker's possible candidacy has been kept well to the front, we cannot see that in any section, North or South, it has aroused any degree of Democratic enthusiasm or confidence. Senator Gorman, on the other hand, appears to be growing in favor, and especially at the South, which will have much to do with the nomination. A later disclosure tells of a quiet movement, starting in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania, to boom Judge George Gray, of Delaware, as a Democratic candidate. He was president of the Roosevelt strike commission, and won high honor by his action in that position. Besides that he has been United States senator, and is now circuit judge of the Pennsylvania circuit.

DEMOCRACY NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS PANIC.

That Wall street flurry that was to be over in a few days still continues. Stocks that have shrunk to the enormous proportions of a billion and a half of dollars, are still going lower. The "flurry" has actually come to be known as the "richman's panic."

The uneasy and panicky conditions have existed for six months, notwithstanding business and trade conditions of the best. That is the great puzzle. Business is all right, but speculation is all wrong, no doubt induced by the tricks and strategy of speculation. To shift the responsibility the attempt is made to place the blame on Congress in defeating the Aldrich financial bill, opening the doors to further inflation of the currency supply. Senator Aldrich predicted its defeat would result in shattered confidence and a financial crisis. This has no doubt been realized, but it is by no means certain that conditions would have been improved had the Aldrich bill been passed into a law. It might have advanced one band of speculators and operators and crushed another. Why should there not be trouble, with public confidence shaken and the flattening out of inflated values? They are exactly the causes that have produced the unrest in the financial world at all times. It is the lesson, of experience. There is nothing new about it. From a Democratic standpoint there is comfort that the cause cannot be attributed to our party in any way, directly or indirectly. This terrible shrinkage of values cannot be charged up against Grover Cleveland's tariff reform or William Jennings Bryan's campaign for free silver.

Silence has been the order of the day recently regarding the scandals in the postoffice department. The party hacks have perhaps been telling the susceptible gentlemen who are still voting to abolish slavery and not to reform the condition of the country that everything of the graft kind has been stopped, and a white dove might fly through the department corridors without having its immaculated feathers smudged. But along comes the indictment of Beavers, and the charge translated into ordinary English is that he charged employees graduated sums for promotions, which would draw different amounts from the treasury. In connection with this true bill it appears that former Congressman Driggs also under indictment, had relations with Mr. Beavers. Heroic measures are being used to prevent Congress ordering a full investigation of the postoffice service, but every indication is that the disease has progressed too far to be thus arrested.

The rates obtained from the Government for the 527 automatic cashier machines furnished the postoffice department partake largely of the current system of high finance. Each machine cost the Government $150, of which the manufacturing company got $50, and $100 was paid in commissions. The price to the public for the same machine was $125, but of this price the company secured a large per centage, mere private agents not charging such exorbitant commissions as congressmen and promoters with influential relatives. Not only is the price list served up hot for the Government a fine example of high finance, but it is also suggestive of some performances under the tariff. Many industries of perennial infancy still receive the governmental pap, but abroad their products are sold lower than in domestic markets. The student of these matters must conclude that brilliant chance in another well-defined modern field of getting rich quick is opened. New text books embodying the prevailing method of computing rates, stock values and rackets are indispensable.

Malmalson Pink, the New Flower.
In London orchids, roses and violets have given way to a variety of carnation that is so rich in texture and coloring that we would scarcely recognize our inexpensive "pink" in the new creation, says the New York Press. The new flower is called a Malmalson pink, and it is the result of grafting the ordinary flower with a peony. The effect is perfect, and for the most part these Malmalsons are a deep coral shade. There is a pretty story that a Paris florist discovered this pink in the gardens of Malmalson, the former home of Napoleon's wife, Josephine, and cut a slip from the imperial plant, but this is improbable, and the fable is attached principally to "boom" the Malmalson. The Malmalson is worn with all colors, and its peculiar shade seldom fails to adorn a woman.

SKETCH

Of the Late Pope By "Gath"

Events In Remarkable Career

INFLUENCE UPON RELIGION AND EDUCATION

BELOVED HEAD OF THE CHURCH

A Christian Man and Superior Magistrate—The Leading Events in a Long Career.

The following sketch of the late Pope from the pen of George Alfred Townsend is full of interest. "Gath" has succeeded in presenting a very attractive way the events in the remarkable career of the deceased pontiff, picturing his great influence upon religion and education.

That the pope of Rome should be a desirable subject for an obituary over the length and breadth of the United States seems novel only to those who have not observed the influence of education and intercourse upon what were once stubborn hostilities.

About seven years ago the publishing house which is generally identified with Mark Twain, the humorist, selected the pope as the subject of a book, and this book among others I have been consulting in order to arrive at a reasonable conclusion upon the work and merits of the superior man just deceased. The tone of this book is excited and partisan, whereas the feeling entertained toward Pope Leo in secular and Protestant circles is absolutely different from the controversial spirit. The fact is that since Leo was depicted by various combative Celtic pens he has himself put a quietus upon that kind of ferocity. In 1892 the world saw with astonishment that the pope of Rome favored the education of the masses and was no opponent of American common school education, and that he was quite willing to have his priests in America follow the usage of the country and on matters of pure politics, taxation and finance choose their own views.

Nothing pacifies what are called religious hostilities like unexpected moderation from the chief of our opponents. The advance of practical science has much restricted the subjects of pure faith. As nearly everything has been more or less explained, as the former world realm of spirits is but seldom disturbed in these centuries by their appearance, and as the collegians, especially in the Catholic church, have given minute attention to education, the dividing lines between this world and the next are merged in the general statement that one portion of the people do not know about the future and another portion do know or do affirm their faith.

Science no longer, as in the time of Voltaire, goes hunting for the church. With corresponding civilization and refinement the church welcomes educated men as at least hopeful signs of a better understanding.

It can be shown, I think, that the story of the pope is an exceedingly simple and pretty one. He has been—though the pontiff, as it is called, of the most ancient ecclesiasticism in western Europe—an excellent citizen of our later world. He has been a good magistrate, a superior pastor, a gentleman, and, it may be added, a prince. He was a prince in nature before he was either cardinal or pope.

In the light of worldly temporalities he has been among the poorest of the popes for many a century, but on that very account less subject to criticism and more open to universal sympathy. From the time he was elected pope the city of Rome has been in the occupation of the king of Italy and has indeed been the political capital of Italy, the laws of that kingdom paying no attention to the previous laws and formalities which the secular state supplanted. But the influence of the pope as a spirit of education and of light has extended to the most remote portions of the world. It has particularly grown in the United States and in England and has also become extended in Germany. The powers which in former centuries most vigorously sustained the pope have either declined, like Spain and Portugal and Austria, or have been revolutionized from within, like France and Italy. But the papacy, even in remote periods, has frequently been espoused in times of need by the ultra Protestant powers. When Louis XIV was attempting to reduce the world to one kingdom, the pope became an ally of England and Holland and influenced some reactionary powers to come to the general assistance of civilization and freedom.

Above all other popes, and somewhat beyond his own record in earlier life, Leo XIII has been a liberal politician. He has hailed the future rather than deplored the loss of the past. He has been one of the captains in the movement for universal education and has striven to make education and morals confide in each other. Not a single scandal from Rome in his papacy has been conveyed to the world. A certain worldly Talleyrandish flavor which went forth in the time of his predecessor from Antonelli, a very able man, has not been revived in Leo's day. He has shown a friendly disposition to the world and could himself take place in almost any learned faculty or congress and hold his own in general knowledge with scientists, belles-lettres men and doctors.

What was he?

Elected pope in February, 1878, he was then almost 68 years of age, and he had been for 32 years the archbishop of one quiet city, Perugia, which once belonged to the papal states, but stood high among the old Italian republics or feudalities for its painters and up of gifts. This region, generally called Umbria, produced the highest triumphs of art in Raphael. In Perugia and its province the archbishop was as distinctly the foremost citizen or subject as the late Philip Brooks undoubtedly was in Boston or Henry Ward Beecher in Brooklyn.

He was born at a mountain town in the Apennines, not far from Rome, called Carpineti, on March 2, 1810. To this little place of about 5,000 people his ancestors had been expelled from Siena about 350 years ago. They were nobles in Siena, but had taken part against their countrymen when the Medici of Florence resolved to conquer and annex Siena. This independent republic, inspired with passionate hatred against Florence, made a memorable defense, but the odds were too strong.

Retiring into the states of the church the pope's family, named Pecci (pronounced Pecci), formed new friendships, and the pope's father was a count who either volunteered or was drafted into Napoleon's service when he overran Italy. The pope's mother was a countess, who brought property to her husband.

They lived in what is called a palace in Italy, a large building rising from the rocks, two stories and an attic high with flowers and terraces about its base. The Italians, even those of high rank, are generally frugal and live upon small incomes. It appears that the pope during all his life has known no want, but has enjoyed a private revenue such as a gentleman of noble descent would be apt to have in any country who had kept his estates.

He was born after the French republicans had overrun Italy and been everywhere victorious, and the greatest change had taken place not only in the Italian people, but even in the priest-hood. Most of the revolutions in what are called the Latin countries are abetted by a certain proportion of the priests, for men do not lose their political passions necessarily by belonging to this church or that. The most implacable opponents of the pope have had as a bishop and incidental civil ruler have been revolutionary priests, and against these he has more than once spoken in reproof.

The ablest author in Europe and the most indefatigable writer at the close of the last century was Voltaire. His frequent books, written with great wit and path, were translated and universally circulated through Italy when the pope was a child. In this papacy a Voltaire jubilee has been held in Rome.

The pope himself, Pius VII, had been taken captive from Rome to France and was only returned to Rome at the fall of Napoleon in 1814. He restored the Jesuits, who were the secular schoolmasters within the church, but they had fallen under the hostility of several of the kings and been for some time suppressed. Upon their return they opened schools and gave the city of Rome something of its old clerical and literary character.

In 1817 the late pope's mother took her sons to Rome and the next year put them at school at Viterbo, a city on a hill but a few hours' carriage ride from Rome. This lady belonged to one of the orders of the Franciscans and when she died was buried in their brown cloak and cord. Her death was nearly at the same time with that of Pius VII.

The next pope, Leo XII, branched out as an educator. The Jesuits' college was opened in Rome in 1821 with 1,400 students, and among these were the two Pecci boys, of whom Joseph was a Jesuit. He was three years older than his brother. These boys went home to their mountain town on holidays, and the pope was an active hunter and fowler in the mountains. Rome was to them like any American city to a family which lived in the neighboring country and spent the winters in the city.

The name of the pope was Joachim Vincent Raphael Lodovico Pecci. He always went by the name of Vincent Pecci until at a certain period after his mother's death, when he became generally known as Joachim Pecci.

He became fluent in the Latin and wrote verses and orations in it and gained prizes. After his mother's death he lived with his uncle in the Muffi palace in Rome. He somewhat knew Pope Leo XII and chose his papal name with reference to that prelate.

He matriculated in 1830, graduated a doctor of theology in 1832, which was the time that he adopted the name of Joachim, and he entered the diplomatic class. In the university called Sapienza, or Wisdom, in Rome, among his friends and classmates were such nobles as Duke Sforza of the old Milan lords.

He was acquainted with Leo, as well as with Pius VII who lived but a short time, and then came Gregory XVI, in whose household he was one of the prelates.

He first attracted special attention during the cholera in Rome in 1837, when he was 27 years old. He had nerve in an unusual degree, and his intrepid services among the cholera-stricken people marked him among the more timid ecclesiastics as a man who could be of use to them in the dangerous condition of the country.

The states of the church indeed were then in a dreadful condition. After the fall of Napoleon, when the nature of the long war had demoralized nobles as well as peasants, a system of brigandage overran the states of the church. As the pope had no extensive army refugees came into his territories from Naples and the other adjoining states and were often employed in the mountain castles by the predatory nobles for the purposes of violence or revenge. Some of the most terrible of these persons had at one time been clerics.

Made a full priest in the Church of St. Stanislaus in Rome, Joachim Pecci was made at the age of 28 governor of Benevento, a small state in Naples about seven miles square and only a day's journey from that city. Benevento had given the title of Prince of Benevento to Talleyrand, the celebrated French diplomatist, who in his early life had been a Catholic bishop.

The little state was full of reactionary guerrillas and brigands. The young ruler went there under the general expectation that he would be the victim of violence. Fortunately for him, he was almost immediately taken ill with the typhoid fever, and his death was supposed to be certain. This calamity softened the nature of the people, and they began to talk about this intellectual young priest who had exposed his life in Rome to the pestilence. Instead of antagonizing him they formed processions and went to public prayers in his behalf, and when he recovered it was looked upon as in the nature of a miracle.

They were mistaken, however, as to his worldly force.

There lived in a mountain fastness in the state a celebrated brigand named Pasquale Colletta, who had a band of 14 murderers, and they had committed every species of offense. The priest governor laid his plans well, and one day the people were surprised to see come into the town, manacled and under guard, the chief of the band and every one of his myrmidons. In spite of their threats, promises and penitence they were executed.

Pecci now turned his attention to the lawless nobles who had countenanced such trespasses, and when one of these undertook to browbeat him and threatened to go to Rome and have him recalled the governor said, "Marquis, before you get to the Vatican you shall pass through the castle of St. Angelo." This was the state prison at Rome, and its name was ominous.

A feeling grew that this young man had special powers with the pope. Evil-doers hastened to get out of his territory or make their peace.

He searched the lawless castles, began to build good roads, examined and lowered the taxes, made the collection of the revenue effective, and thus spent nearly three years making an orderly state out of a most disorderly one.

Pope Gregory now recalled him to Rome and appointed him governor of Perugia, where he will always be remembered as one of the wisest men who ever took charge of her fortunes. This city stands near Assisi, where is the monastery founded by St. Francis. It was full of Mazzini's revolutionary societies.

The object the papal authorities had in view by the suppression of these plotting spirits by Pecci, but he commenced in a different way.

Finding that the city was on a high mound or cone above a plain or marsh and had a road to it so steep that no vehicle could climb it without the aid of many yokes of oxen, the new governor set to work and in 20 days built a graded road up the height, over which in a little while rode the pope, much to his wonder and satisfaction.

The pope was so delighted with his young engineer governor, then aged 31, that he said as he left a number of presents to be distributed, "I will remember you, my friend, when I get to Rome."

In the meantime Pecci founded a savings bank in Perugia and himself subscribed largely to the stock and began to set up excellent schools. The people felt that a friend and not an enemy had come among them.

Just as he had accomplished remarkable things in that city the pope resolved to send him as nuncio, otherwise minister, to Belgium, which had not long before been separated from Holland by a revolution and created into a new monarchy. Belgium had only been free from Holland about 13 years. The people were Catholics, while those of Holland had been Protestants. Other than church differences existed between them. The Dutch were unimaginative and pugnacious and hard taskmasters. The Belgians had an antiquity of turbulent freedom and loved the arts and joys.

At 33 Archbishop Pecci, as he now was, appeared in Brussels accredited to King Leopold, who was the uncle of the royal family of England. An interesting account of his gentle yet democratic intercourse is to be found in the "Life of Charles Lever," the novelist, who at that time lived in Brussels and was writing some of his novels. He and the future pope became warm friends. So did the king and queen take most cordially to the nuncio.

He busied himself mainly in rearing up the Catholic schools and universities of Belgium, which had gone into a decline. His readiness on political affairs was such that Leopold one day said to him, "You are as clever a politician as you are a bright churchman."

Always moderate and always learning, Archbishop Pecci was also active for his church and raised money in Belgium to found a college in Rome to educate the priests of that country.

Before he returned to Rome in 1846 he visited London with letters to Victoria and Albert and was by them well entertained, and he mingled among the best people in England and took close observations upon the country. This species of intercourse no doubt broadened his mind and made him see that the modern world could not be reduced to the haggard outlines of Italy.

From London he went to France and paid a visit to Louis Philippe, who was dangerously near his fall.

When he got to Rome Pope Gregory was dying.

Pecci was well acquainted with Cardinal Ferretti, who soon became Pius IX, and that pope made him archbishop of Perugia at the age of 36. Nearly at the same time the new pope granted a general amnesty for political offenses and was for a time regarded as a man of liberal intentions.

It was fortunate for Archbishop Pecci that he could retire to a distance from Rome in the mountains toward Tuscany and exercise his prerogatives without becoming involved in the rising political passions at the Eternal City, where very soon Mazzini, Garibaldi and others revolutionized Rome and formed a triumvirate of dictators and had to stand a siege by the French, at the close of which the pope was so heartily frightened that he revoked his liberal dispositions.

Retired to a city of about 60,000 people, the archbishop of Perugia, as has been said, lived there 22 years, or down to the year 1878. He was a universal reader, and among the wise saints in the Catholic age he chose St. Charles Borromeo as a man to imitate, the giver of his riches to alms and education. Heathen upon gave his mind to the study of education in Perugia.

He made up his mind in the first place to educate his clergy thoroughly and to see that their habits were industrious and pure. Next he set upon the education of the upper classes, many of whom were contemptibly illiterate. Finally he came down to the children and even paid some attention to female education.

At one time the revolutionary elements in Perugia arose, and a conflict took place between them and the papal troops, who were of all nations, Swiss, German, Irish, and even American, and the populace was worsted.

The archbishop surrounded himself with friends of like tastes with his own, favorable to education and sincerely desirous of seeing morals made voluntary. He had been received in the city, when he returned there the second time, with a magnificent demonstration. As the ruler, both ecclesiastic and civil, he inhabited the palace upon the public square, which had on one side of it the city hall and on the other the cathedral. Along the friends he took to his heart in this place was Mgr. Satolli, the recent legate of the pope in America.

In 1854 he was made a cardinal, and this entitled him to take part in the selection of future popes.

Glancing back for a moment at these dates, we will see that the pope was born in the year after Gladstone; that he became a full priest near the close of General Jackson's administration, and that he became archbishop of Perugia at the time of our Mexican war.

His habits did not differ at any time.

He was remarkably laborious, of a spare frame, with a high, capacious forehead, a large mouth, a full, long and expressive nose, and an expression of thorough refinement, purity and acuteness.

Being a nobleman of the best class of Italian descent and of a nation immemorably ardent for knowledge and loving the arts, he was also destitute of sourness and had convictions without being opinionated.

None could impeach his private life. He was ever accessible to his priests and to those people who required him as a spiritual friend, but he also had high spirit, and when browbeaten disclosed something like a military power, within, and he could use indignant words. He was too worldly wise to be cheated, too discreet to commit himself in either word or deed, except as his judgment and conscience were touched, and after the Italians in 1860 overran his state they found that he was a difficult man to handle, in that he kept on the side of intelligent public opinion.

In short, he was a pope in spirit, representing the antiquity and authority of the church long before it was probable that he would fill the pontifical chair. He rose to this distinction at last by having deserved it.

Though it is probable that he was not unmindful of the honor and influence of that great office, he knew too well that to reach it in this dangerous age he must deserve it by a combination of character, of courage and of wisdom.

SUDDEN DEATH

Of "Jack Frost" at B. & O. Shops--Man's Parents Deserted Him When He Was a Child and He Was Sent to Orphans' Home.

John Snelling, aged about 45 years, died very suddenly on Monday night about 8:15 o'clock, while at his work at the B. & O. shops. Snelling was employed as fireman of the stationary boilers at the B. & O., and went to work Monday evening at 6 o'clock, in his usual health.

Just after putting in a "fire" he became suddenly ill and before medical aid could be gotten to him, expired.

Coroner C. F. Legge was notified, and the body was removed in Bowers & Bradley's ambulance to their undertaking establishment where it was prepared for burial. Heart disease is given as the cause of death.

Snelling was a single man, and has no immediate family as far as he knows. He had told some of his few intimate friends that when a lad of eight years, his mother left home with another man and he never afterward heard from her.

His father when he learned of the elopement of his wife, told the boy and his little sister to remain at the house until he called for them. The father never came back after driving away that morning many years ago.

John was taken and raised as an orphan, later adopting the name of Jack Frost, by which he was well known in Newark and Licking county. He has been around Newark for a number of years, for some time working on the Holler farm in the Cherry Valley, and afterwards worked about Newark.

He was sober and industrious, quiet and unobtrusive and was respected by those who knew him.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE

Recommends Passage of Vehicle Ordinance and Establishment of Incandescent Light Plant--Alley Paving--High Tension Wire.

The city council met in regular session Monday evening, with President Rossell in the chair, and members present: Messrs. Baker, Carlile, Jones, Moser, Miller and Hunter.

In the absence of Clerk F. T. Maurath, W. E. Miller was elected clerk pro tem and Miss Ada Follett acted in Mr. Miller's place.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

The Board of Public Service reported $1587.50 as an estimate for paving post-office alley, received and filed.

The law committee reported, recommending that $2000 be appropriated for the repair of the municipal light plant; that council take necessary steps to install an incandescent light plant to furnish light to consumers, and recommended the passage of a vehicle tax ordinance; received and filed.

A petition was read from property owners on alley south of Main from Front to Second street; received and filed.

Property owners on Flory avenue petitioned for the extension of water mains on said street from Church to Locust street.

An ordinance accepting Mrs. M. Lavina's addition to the city of Newark was read for the first time.

An ordinance was read for the first time accepting the plat of the Newark real Estate and Improvement company's second addition to the city of Newark; referred to street committee.

An ordinance was read for the first time levying a tax on vehicles, used on the city streets continuously. The schedule provides for a tax of from 50 cents for bicycles to $5 for heavy drays. The income derived is to be applied to the maintenance of the streets; referred to finance committee.

RESOLUTIONS.

Judge Hunter, That Solicitor Smythe be instructed to prepare a resolution declaring the necessity of paving the alley known as the postoffice alley with brick; adopted.

By Judge Hunter, That the action of the solicitor and Board of Public Service bringing a legal action to enjoin the Buckeye Lake road from using the high tension wire now running into the company's power house at 12th street, be affirmed and instructing the solicitor to prosecute the case; adopted, yeas 4, nays 2, not voting 1.

By Judge Hunter, That work on North avenue and Cedar street begin at once; adopted.

PICNIC A SUCCESS.

The picnic of Gro. No. 41, U. A., of Druids, at the farm of L. Frischen, near Hebron, on Sunday, was a grand success. The members of the order, their families and invited guests, to the number of two hundred, attended the outing. Three base ball games were the features of the occasion. An appetizing dinner spread on snowy cloths on the ground was much enjoyed. The party left the city at nine o'clock in the morning and returned at six o'clock in the evening. All having had a most enjoyable time.

Produce Poisoning Which Makes Condition Quite Serious—A Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jones.

The little five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jones, residing on Tenth street, got hold of a box of tablets that had been given her father by one of the physicians of the city, shortly before noon today, and ate a number of them. Shortly after eating the tablets the little one was taken violently sick, and Dr. I. N. Palmer was called, who found her to be suffering from belladonna and strichnia poisoning. It is not known how many of the tablets the little one ate, but Dr. Palmer considers her condition quite serious.

A Beautiful Waist.

There are various devices by means of which the long-shoulder effect may be produced, one of which is by cutting the front of the waist and the upper part of the sleeve all in one piece, or by extending the yoke trimming out on to the shoulder. The latter method is the one employed in the model here shown. The yoke extends down the front of the waist in a novel fashion. The design on the yoke and sleeves is embroidered in white using one of the larger sizes of Corticelli mountmellick embroidery silk.

THAT CURSE CALLED RUMOR.

Between the incendiary who fires his neighbor's barn in secret vengeance, and the worthy who starts a "run" on a Bank with malicious gossip, there is only a technical difference.

Gossip with a purpose has too often been used to stab character and to wreck fortunes, and it is a great pity the law cannot better reach those who employ such intangible and insidious methods to achieve their ends.

Scarcely any enterprise, or individual no matter how deserving, is safe from the subtle dangers of the Gossip-monger, and human nature so loves a morsel of such "news" that it can be relied upon to "push along" a rumor when once it has been judiciously started.

A vivid illustration of the gross injustice such a rumor can do is seen in the "Force" Food company's advertisement of this date, wherein a reward of $5000 is offered for the conviction of the parties who initiated the suggestion that "Force" was drugged.

A further offer of $5,000 for evidence that a single package of the fifty million sold contained anything except Wheat, Barley and Table Salt is, of course, a complete refutation of the rumor, even if the State Supervision of Foods was not in itself ample protection.

People who love fair play in business, as well as in other matters, will read with indignation that it has cost The "Force" Food company over $50,000 to publish a refutation of this "rumor" in the newspapers of the United States and Canada, and, probably, as much more in loss of sales resulting from the baseless gossip which did the harm.

The absurdity of the rumor is apparent when it is known that the public has consumed fifty million packages of "Force" without a single instance of any ill effect upon any one of the users.

THE RAILWAYS

TWO NEWARK CLERKS HAVE RESIGNED.

Zanesville Engineer's Death—Largest Electric Locomotive in World—Local Railway Items.

George O. Dayton, who for a number of years has been employed as clerk in the office of the master mechanic in the Baltimore and Ohio at this point, has resigned to accept a position with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, under Assistant Superintendent of Motive Power H. M. Breneman, formerly of this city.

Chief Clerk Resigns.

Clarence W. Boyd, who for the past 17 years has been in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio company and for several years past has been chief clerk in the office of the master mechanic, tendered his resignation.

Mr. Boyd was one of the most efficient railroad men in Newark. He will remain at home with his parents for the present, but it is understood he has a number of excellent offers from other roads.

Zanesville Engineer's Death.

Memphis, Tenn., July 21.—Lying in a lonely spot on the sandbar on the Arkansas side of the river the decomposed body of Fred Hock, of Zanesville, O., an engineer on the United States dredgeboat Betat, was found. Through his temples was a bullet hole and clutched in his fingers was a revolver.

Many witnesses saw him under the influence of liquor the day before he disappeared, and the coroner's jury postponed making a verdict until a postmortem examination.

Largest in the World.

The General Electric company has completed for the B. & O. road the largest electric locomotive in the world. It is larger than any steam locomotive. It is to be used in the tunnel at Baltimore to haul heavy freight trains through the city. The locomotive weighs 180 tons and will pull a freight train weighing 1,500 tons up a grade of 1 1/2 per cent. Its capacity is 2,000 horse power.

It is controlled with the multiple unit system and there is a controller at either end of the cab so the engine can be run either way.

The locomotive is made up of two units, each having eight 42-inch drivers, so that the locomotive has 16 driving wheels. Each unit weighs 80 tons, and it is so arranged that any number of units may be coupled together, so that it can be made as much larger as desired.

PROGRESS

Being Made on the Newark-Zanesville Electric Road—The Tunnel at Black Hand.

Work on the west end of the Newark and Zanesville division of the Columbus, Newark & Zanesville electric railway, is being pushed as rapidly as possible, and the Northern Construction Co., and their sub-contractors have established camps at a point near Newark and at Pleasant Valley. At Black Hand the tunnel has been forced through the hill some 250 feet, while on the west end, about three miles out from Newark, the steel is being laid both ways, toward Zanesville and also toward Newark. Engineer Harry Buell has charge of the line from Nashport to Zanesville while S. N. Savage looks after the other section, extending from Nashport to Newark each practically being charge of the camps of workmen. F. H. Blodgett, contractor, of Fairmont, W. Va., has his gang of workmen and teams at Pleasant Valley and L. C. Marble, of the construction company is in charge of a sub-station on the C. O. Marshall farm at the Valley.

There will be a meeting of the Bar Tenders local 412, Thursday evening, July 23, at 7:30 o'clock. Frank Catt, president, C. F. Walton, recording secretary.

WOMAN'S

MITE MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETING

Being Held at Trinity A. M. E. Church Here—Bishop B. W. Arnett Among Those Present.

The Woman's Mite Missionary society of the Third Episcopal District of the A. M. E. church, met in session at the A. M. E. church, this city, this morning, and will continue in session until this evening. The meeting was called to order by Bishop B. W. Arnett, D. D., who is the guest of D. M. Guy. The meeting was presided over by the President, Mrs. Rosa Johnson, while Mrs. Melvina A. Mitchell, the secretary, was in her chair. The meeting was well attended and several fine and instructive addresses were made by different delegates on the object of the society in furthering the missionary work. After a fine address by the Bishop, the president of the society, then entered upon the duties of her office, and the work of the meeting began, the pastor, Rev. L. W. White, D. D., lending valuable assistance. The delegates in attendance are as follows:

Ohio Conference, Mrs. Melvina A. Mitchell, Wilberforce, O.; Mrs. Anna J. Rankin Cincinnati; Mrs. Margaret Tate, Zanesville.

Pittsburg Conference, Mrs. Grace P. Offer, Pittsburg; Mrs. Jennie B. Bunting, Brownsville, Pa.; Mrs. Mary C. Stevenson, Williamsport, Pa.; Mrs. Viola M. Coleman, Washington, Pa.

SKETCH

In 1869 the French troops were withdrawn from Rome, and the pope was left to such an army as he could himself create. The Italians, however, six years previously had overrun Sicily and Naples, annexed Tuscany and other states, and finally Venice, and were determined to occupy the papal states.

At this time Cardinal Pecci addressed the priests in words which should be common to all churches, saying:

"The moral conduct of the priests is the mirror into which the people look to find a model for their own demeanor. Every shadow, every stain, is remarked by the vulgar eye, and the mere shadow is enough to make the people lose their esteem of priestly worth. It is impossible that a priest who lays himself open to such reproaches or suspicions, who has the name of being self-indulgent, interested and of irregular living, should give forth that fragrance of a pure life, that sweet odor of Christ, which witnesses to our worth and to our doctrine. The two great means, which the Divine Master declares to be indispensable in our high ministry are holiness and knowledge."

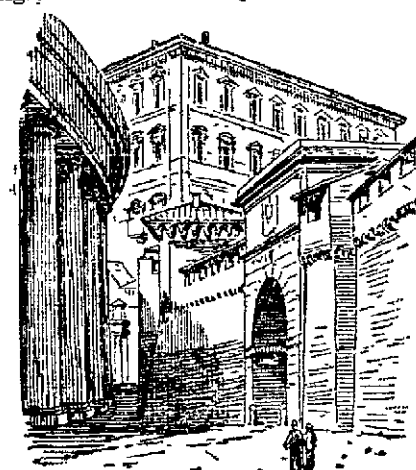

In 1869 he made an effort with the king of Italy to rescue poor clerical students from the military conscription. "The burden of military service," he said, "must inevitably fall on all young men who have devoted themselves to the clerical career. We are deeply saddened by this. We are frightened by the thought that so many parishes will ask us for pastors while we shall have none to give them. That so many pious populations will ask for the food of Christian instruction and the comfort of the sacraments, and that no one will be found to minister to them, and that, such a state of things continuing, there is nothing to prevent religion from dying out in these country places for the very lack of hands to cultivate it."

The government now sequestered nearly all ecclesiastical property, seizing upon the residences of the bishops and the church revenues and making exceptions where it saw fit.

At one time bloodshed was threatened in Perugia, when the archbishop came upon the scene and by his courageous and calm interposition prevented a conflict. He pardoned all the malcontents who had been put down in 1859. When the Swiss garrison of Perugia undertook in 1860 to resist the Sardinians, the cardinal in vain attempted to prevent a battle. He was unable to prevent the execution of one of his officials, who was shot by a court martial for having borne arms.

Soon civil marriage was commanded, with penalties to parish priests for interposing. In 1862 he was sued because he had admonished some of his priests who had subscribed a cordial address to a republican priest leader.

He issued an address against modern spiritualism, saying that "religion and morality must condemn the use of these mysterious agencies, whatever truth might be in them, by unprincipled, irreligious and interested persons."

ENTRANCE TO THE VATICAN.

A pastoral letter that he wrote on the temporal dominion of the popes, defending their right to their territories, called special attention to him as one of the champions of the church.

"Let us say nothing of the august right consecrated by 11 centuries of possession, of the most ancient and venerated of European monarchies. If such rights are not sufficient to insure respect, then there is no kingdom, no empire, in Europe which may not be destroyed. It is false that any Catholic holds the temporal dominion to be a dogma of his faith. Such an assertion can only have come from the ignorance or the wickedness of the enemies of the church. But it is most true and must be evident to any intelligent mind that there is a very close connection between this temporal power and the spiritual primacy."

In 1861 the Italian minister of worship demanded that the clergy renounce their allegiance to Pius IX, when Cardinal Pecci wrote a joint letter to the pope standing by him.

He protested against the confiscation of the mountain monasteries, which would yield no revenue to the king and turn into the world a parcel of helpless ecclesiastics.

When he was made cardinal, the prince imperial of Germany was present among many distinguished strangers, and when he came back to Perugia all the people turned out to congratulate him. Especially did the Umbrian academy receive him with a literary entertainment. He gave a splendid feast, and the city was illuminated.

When his silver jubilee came around in 1871 and the pope sent his congratulations, the Italian military authorities stood back, really liking the cardinal. In 1877 the pope held his fiftieth anniversary or jubilee as a bishop.

The Italian parliament, sitting in Rome, brought in a clerical abuses bill, but Pius IX fulminated against it and the government.

The pope now made Cardinal Pecci camerlingo, or vicar of Rome when the pope should be absent, and this of course raised the highest expectations as to his future promotion, for he had but one step more to go.

THE KEYSTONE WATCH CASE COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

Pope Pius IX. died Jan. 7, 1878, and he next day King Victor Emmanuel ascended the Quirinal palace in Rome.

In some parts of the world it was advocated that a new pope should not be chosen to be elected. Cardinal Pecci altered the old habit of having the pope's corpse lie in the Sixtine chapel, where the people would have thronged within a limited area and perhaps called for the interposition of the police.

Cardinal Pecci set 500 men to work to prepare a place for the conclave to meet, and at once closed this conclave to the outside world. Ten days were allowed to expire after the pope's death, according to rule. On Sunday, Feb. 17, the devotions were concluded by a pontifical mass, and the next day everything was ready for the conclave.

But the Quirinal palace was now in the hands of the royalists. Sixty-one cardinals met on Monday morning in the Pauline chapel, only three in the world being omitted—one French, one Irish and one American (McCloskey), the latter being on his way.

Papal elections in the remote past had often been interfered with by the house of Bourbon and others. On this occasion there was no interference.

The second day of the conclave's improvised chamber was locked on the inside and the outside, and every portion of the inclosure examined to see that there was no communication with the world.

Cardinal Pecci had a kitchen within the inclosure and cooks and servants ready. Each cardinal sat under a canopy, with a small square table and writing materials before him. Then with folded paper the ballots were dropped into a consecrated chalice. From this chalice they were counted into another one.

On the first ballot there were 23 votes for the vicar, Cardinal Joachim Pecci. The balloting papers were burned, and at the sign of the smoke issuing from the stovepipe in a window the crowd outside knew that no pope had yet been chosen. Cardinal Pecci retired to his cell.

Then came an afternoon session. The cardinal himself voted secretly, like the rest. He sat in great distress and responsibility. Persons present say that great tears rolled down his cheeks, and that when he undertook to write his ballot his hand shook so violently that the pen fell to the ground.

This time he had 33 votes, but not enough.

Everything pointed to the probability of his election on the next day, Wednesday.

That day Cardinal Pecci undertook to check the movement toward him, but the third ballot came on, and 44 votes were recorded in his favor, more than two-thirds.

The master of ceremonies went up to his seat and asked him, "Do you accept the election as supreme pontiff of the Catholic church?" He arose and affirmed his unworthiness. At length, however he bowed.

Then at a clapping of hands all the cardinals rose and stood in homage, and the canopies above all their seats were lowered except that above the pope elect.

"By what name do you wish to be called?"

"By the name of Leo XIII."

The pope elect was now taken aside and clad in white cassock, cinchuro, rochet, hood and berretta and even stockings. His shoes, however, were scarlet, with a golden cross upon them. He advanced from behind the altar to his throne.

The fisherman's ring is put upon his hand. The cardinals come up and kiss his feet and receive his kiss upon their cheeks. This is called the "adoration."

An aged cardinal advances upon the piazza and declares to the multitude: "I announce to you tidings of great joy. We have a pope, the most eminent and most revered Joachim Pecci, cardinal priest of the title of St. Chrysogonus, who hath given himself for name Leo XIII."

The bells of the churches rang, but no cannon thundered as of yore, and there was no illumination, though some individuals illuminated their palaces.

Perugia was in delight.

The pope's term has been unusually active, as might be supposed from the diminution of his temporal or prince powers. He has given his active—sometimes too active—hand to corresponding with the churches in all nations. As the Italians preferred their national policy to the pope's interests, he has not been as provincial an Italian as his predecessors. His friendly and reciprocal hand has been felt in distant countries. Teaching the necessity of Christianity, which he considered to be his, or the church to human society, he said:

center of the Catholic religion. The progress made by heresy, heterodox temples and schools build freely and in great number."

The pope addressed himself to the good will of Bismarck, who really held Italy up. The Italian government sold the property of the propaganda and put the church catechism out of the primary schools. Many pilgrims, however, came to Rome bringing gifts. Leo made a peace, rather recklessly broken by his predecessor, with the emperor of Russia, and some of the grand dukes came to see him. He sent crosses to Asiatic rulers and softened their natures. Deprived of some barren mountains and masmastic plains, he cultivated far abroad the amenities of society and the human heart not at all depraved. He made a hierarchy for Scotland, shrewdly saying in the tone of Walter Scott, "The remains still extant of church edifices, monasteries and other religious structures bear splendid testimony to the piety of the ancient Scots." He stopped the silly feuds between various kinds of Russian Christians in the Turkish lands and gave this confidence to Cardinal Dr. Walsh in 1885, and Mr. Parnell was unable to lead the Irish cause after his social ship. Leo boomed the Catholic university at Washington city, where his vicar, Satolli, now lives.

In Germany eminent Catholics like Dr. Dollinger and Prince Hohenlohe, both of Bavaria, attacked the papal doctrine of infallibility as encouraging rebellion against the civil rulers under Jesuit interpretation. Italy was then the ally of Germany. What was called "the old Catholic church," or Jansenists, was built up to neutralize the Jesuits. The word "kultur kampf," or learning's conflict against sixteenth century Catholicism, was invented. Bruno, the priest philosopher and friend of Galileo, was given a statue in Rome, where he had been burned. In 1878 the Jesuits had been driven out of Germany by Bismarck. But the pope saw the political influence his friends could wield by organization in the German parliament, led by Von Windthorst, and he extended to Bismarck the bond of friendship, which disarmed him. A man like this, who could accept the century, was certainly a great advance upon his impolitic and unskillful predecessors.

Ultimately Leo snote with the broad hand the clericals who assumed in the United States to be more retaliatory than himself. He sent his legate to the nation, and with the legate came the pope's bright, happy, active, winning countenance, a fellow man. The world accepted his good will as a pilgrim to higher things, welcoming all joyous and decent travelers upon the road.

The end of the propaganda has been greatly to the strengthening of Catholic education in other parts of the world. The revenue of this see was not over $12,000 a year, and the university at Washington commenced with about that income.

The pope was actually chosen by Bismarck for mediator between Germany and Spain over some forsaken islets in 1855. Leo gave Spain the sovereignty and Germany a naval station. Such has been the influence on the better angel of the Vatican, whose active and brotherly spirit wore itself out visiting and assisting his fellow men.

DOCTORS

AGAIN DEFEATED LAWYERS IN BASEBALL GAME

Score This Time Was Fifteen to Six—
The "Pillists" Found the Ball Easily.

The doctors of Newark and the Lawyers took representative teams to the Y. M. C. A. athletic park Monday afternoon, and played the second game this season, the Doctors having won the first game by a score of 10 to 9.

On Monday afternoon the medical men duplicated their victory, and demonstrated their superiority in a decisive manner beating the legal lights by a score of 15 to 6.

Wayne Collier started to pitch for the lawyers, and was found to be no puzzle, besides being wild. Dr. Palmer took especially kindly to the young barrister's delivery making four corking hits. Two of them would have been easy home runs for a faster runner.

Dr. Shiren and Dr. Emory alternated in the pitcher's box for the doctors, and both were effective. The game was witnessed by a fairly good crowd, the attendance of ladies being especially noticeable and gratifying. The crowd was intensely partisan and did everything in their power to encourage their respective favorites.

Won $6,000 and Quit.

Detroit, Mich., July 21.—All Detroit sports are talking of Billy Goodenough's wonderful luck the past few days. Last week he went over to Windsor with $20 and dropped into Pittsburg Hall's faro room. He lost all but $5, and then his luck changed, and he ran his roll up to $200. He returned the next night and also Saturday, and finally retired winner with $6,000 to the good. Goodenough is an ordinary day laborer, and for fear that he would not be strong enough to resist temptation promptly invested the $6,000 in a house and lot and then went back to work at $2 per.

National League Magnates Meet.

At a meeting of the National League magnates, held Monday night in New York City, the position of Gary Hermann was sustained and the peace agreement held valid. It was decided that Elberfeld is to go back to the New York American League Club without question and that the National League decides that the peace agreement was not violated by the signing of Elberfeld.

While it leaves the issue that way, it, however, does not attempt to take sides against any court that may assert that Elberfeld had a legal contract with the New York National.

The case of Davis is left entirely with the courts. While he is declared ineligible to play with the New York Nationals under the peace agreement it is especially stipulated that no baseball ruling under any case can be paramount to a decision of the court. That throws the whole matter back on the New York Club to fight out.

Wednesday's Game at Idlewild.

This week will be a busy one for the Idlewild baseball team, as they will play four games. The first one will be at home with Alexandria, the fast aggregation that has been beating everything that dared tackle them in the capital of St. Albans township. The teams that have been defeated by Alexandria include some of the best amateur clubs in Columbus and other places, and the old Idlewild team was also one of their victims.

The home players are determined that a different story will be told after Wednesday's game, and will endeavor to beat the Alexandria boys quickly and decisively. A big crowd of rooters will come down from Alexandria to encourage their pets against the strong Idlewild team, and every indication points to a great game, which will pay any one to attend.

Thursday Idlewild goes to Mt. Vernon, returning to play Shawnee Saturday and Sunday at the park.

Another Challenge.

Just because the doctors have twice beaten the lawyers in baseball is no proof at all that they are the champions of the city. The merchants who won such a glorious victory from the bankers last Friday have talked the matter over among themselves and have decided that if the doctors will meet them on the Y. M. C. A. grounds Friday afternoon, July 31, they will administer to them the medicine which they need so much just now to allay their concertedness—namely a thorough defeat. We await the doctors' answer. The committee.

Idlewild Team Averages.

There have been many requests made to the Advocate to print the records of the Idlewild team since its reorganization, on July 1. Those who have taken part in three or more games since that time are given an average, which shows that Doggett the hard hitting catcher leads in batting with the fine average of .384, and also leads in fielding with a per cent of 1000 in four games. He is tied for fielding honors, however, with Lefty Snyder, who alternates in the box and in the field.

Art Francis is just 4 points below the coveted 300 mark in batting while he has the handsome average of .376 in the field. This is an exceptionally fine showing as he has played nearly every position in the infield.

DR. LAPPONI

Gives a Description of the Passing of Pope Leo—Final Moments Were Serene.

Rome, July 21.—Dr. Lapponi gives this description of the passing of Leo: "Death occurred through exhaustion, although in the last two hours Pope Leo made a supreme effort to gather together all his energies. He succeeded in recognizing those about him by the sound of their voices, as his sight was almost entirely lost. Still he made a marvelous display of his energy and even his death was really grand. Very few examples can be given of a man of such advanced age after so exhaustive an illness showing such supreme courage in dying. The pontiff's last breath was taken exactly at four minutes past four. I approached a lighted candle to his mouth three times, according to the traditional ceremonial, and afterward declared, the Pope to be no more. I then went to inform Cardinal Oreglia, the dean of the sacred college, who immediately assumed full power and gave orders that the vatican be cleared of all curious persons having no right to be there."

Pope Leo's final moments were marked by that same serenity and devotion, and when he was conscious that same calm intelligence which were associated with his 25 years' pontificate. His was no easy death. An hour before he died, turning to Dr. Lapponi and his devoted valet, Pio Central, he murmured: "The pain I suffer is most terrible." Yet his parting words were not of the physical anguish that he suffered, but were whispered benedictions upon the cardinals and his nephews, who knelt at the bedside, and the last look of his almost sightless eyes was toward the great ivory crucifix hanging in the death chamber. "Practically all the cardinals now in Rome, kneeling at the bedside, watched the passage of his soul. Earlier in the day Cardinal Cerofino Vannutelli had impressively pronounced the absolution in articulo mortis.

When mixing mustard for the table it is a great improvement to gradually add a little salad oil.

President Roosevelt was surprised today to see a statement printed that the Prince and Princess of Wales had accepted his invitation to visit him. While the President would be pleased to entertain the British heir apparent if he came to this country, he has not asked him to come, neither does he believe the Prince contemplates making a visit to America in the near future. It is within realm of possibility that the Prince might come without invitation, but it is scarcely probable. Prince Henry of Prussia, visited the United States in that informal way and his English relative might take his call as a precedent.

IN VERSE

POETIC SIDE OF LATE POPE
LEO'S LIFE

A Brief Eulogy His First Poem—A Tribute to the New Art of Photography.

Of Leo XIII., the man, genial, affectionate, cultured, with all the qualities of head and heart to make him humanly lovable as well as revered through the dignity of his office, the world knows best through his poems, says the Pittsburg Dispatch.

He began writing Latin when he was twelve years old. No biographies, however exhaustive, give, or could give, so clear an insight into the inner heart of the great pontiff as these fine outpourings of his spirit.

The first literary production of the schoolboy of Viterbo, in later years to become pope, was a brief eulogy of Father Vincenzo Pavani, provincial of the Jesuits, who was visiting the village. The author, who was then just twelve years old, was baptized Joachim Vincent Raphael Aloysius Pecci.

The poem reads:
Thy very name, Pavani, Vincent styled,
Was mine—a little child.

What mighty virtues thou didst well pursue,
Would I might follow too!

The next poem was written eight years later, in 1830. It is entitled "On His Sickness" and is a remarkable commentary on his will power:
A youth of twenty years—how sickly and how spare!
Ah, to what natural shock my flesh is heir!

Haply to utter here my memorable grief
May bring, if not surcease, some sad relief.

Through sleepless nights in vain I fretfully compose
My weak and weary limbs to seek repose.
My food no strength affords; my drooping
limbs complain
Of light, and oft my head is racked with pain.

Anon my parched limbs a wasting ague chill;
Anon with torrid heats of fever fills.

Haggard and wan my face, and laboring is my breath;
Languid I walk the way to dusty death.

Why shall I cheat my heart and years
a-pently crave
When Atropos compels the dreaded grave?

Rather my soul will speak: "O Death,
where is thy sting?
With gladness I await thy triumphing!"

"The passing shows of life shall not disturb my peace,
Who long to taste the joy that cannot cease.

"Happy the exile's feet to press the fatherland;
Happy the storm tossed bark to gain the strand!"

As illustrating the lofty and ascetic habits of the retiring young student the following "Repelling of the Wanton," put into the mouth of one Ruggero, is interesting:

With red flaming cheek, with gaudy array,
What snare dost thou plan? Amaryllis,
For a poison of asps is under thy tongue,
And a hideous ulcer thy bosom hath wrung.

A charming tribute to the new art of photography was written in 1867, while Leo XIII. was archbishop of Perugia. It is:

Sun wrought with magic of the skies,
The image fair before me lies;
Deep vaulted brain and sparkling eyes
And lip's fine chiselling.

O miracle of human thought,
O art with newest marvels fraught,
Apelles, nature's rival, wrought
No fairer imaging!

In 1830, when but twenty years old, young Pecci wrote what he then apparently believed to be his death song. Although he had more than threescore and ten years to live—years filled with an activity of which his delicate frame seemed then incapable—he sang with cheerful joy of the approach of death. The following poem has been translated as follows:

Scarcely twenty years thou numberest,
And full diseases thy young life invade!
Yet pains, when charm'd by verse, seem half allayed;
Recount thy sorrows then in mournful hymn.

Wakeful till latest night, thy limbs in vain
Court needed rest, nor sleep nor food restore
Thy strength outworn, thine eyes all darkened o'er,
Dejected sink, while racked the head with pain.

Fever consumes thee; chill as ice congeals,
Or parched with burning thirst, pallid as death
Each several feature; toils the weary breath;
Through all thy fainting form the languor steals.

Why dream of future years, with promise bland,
While swift fate urges? Then I said:
No fear
My spirit shall quell! Draws Death indeed so near?
Cheerful I wait to grasp his bony hand.

No fading joys allurement offer now;
Unattended, I pant for bliss supreme;
Glad as when wanderer's footsteps home return
Or seaman when to harbor veers his prow.

Wax Bullets For Duel Practice.

The pistol shooting world has been stirred by an invention consisting of bullets made of a compound of wax and tallow which will allow sham duels with the pistol to take place in the same form as fencing bouts, says a Paris cable dispatch to the New York Herald. The bullets are sufficiently hard to permit good aim and soft enough to be harmless. This is said to be good practice for would be duellists, as it will teach them to show only the right side of the body.

If you are troubled with impure blood, indicated by sores, pimples, headache, etc., we would recommend Acker's Blood Elixir, which we sell under a positive guarantee. It will always cure Scrofulous or Syphilitic poisons and all blood diseases, 50 cents and $1.00. For sale by Collins & Son.

NEW BOOK

Analysis of American History by Prof.
J. H. Schooler of West Carlisle,
Ohio.

An "Analysis of American History," by Prof. J. H. Schooler, has just been issued from the press of the Advocate office. The book contains over 200 pages of matter of historical interest.
The author has gathered together into one book the history of four centuries. No one other volume has ever been published that contains the features this book contains, and it is, as its title indicates, an analysis of American history.

Prof. Schooler, the author, is a progressive teacher of West Carlisle. The book sells for $1.00 per copy and will prove to be a great help to the teacher and to the student. It is well printed and is substantially bound in cloth.

Valuable Time Saved.

Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time and when blood poison develops sometimes result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment. When applied to cuts, bruises and burns it causes them
to heal quickly and without maturing, and prevents any danger of blood poison. For sale by all druggists.

Beautify your homes with paint, with varnish. Mantels, fire fronts and hearthths that look shabby from years of wear dressed up to look just like those $50.00 ones you see in the store.

Parquetry floors more handsome than those you see in these would be homes. Let the Star Paint Shop show you sample of the nicest floor finish you ever saw. If you want paint that shines by night and out of sight by day just try the Star. Outside, inside, 35 North Second street, new phone 746.

H. B.

What does that H. B. poster mean?
The people hope to see the answer to
it soon. 7-3-4t

Cotton is the most valuable crop we grow except corn. The 11,000,000 bales in this year's production will bring planters about $500,000,000.

HAPPY DAY

FOR CHILDREN AT IDLEWILDE PARK

Little Folks Given a Splendid Outing
By Salvation Army—A Day of Enjoyment.

The outing prepared and carried out by the Salvation Army of this city under the efficient management of Captain Runce, for the benefit of the poor children of the city and their mothers, took place on Tuesday, and was a perfect success in every particular. The sight that the little ones presented as they embarked for the picnic grounds would have cheered the heart of anyone and amply repaid him for any little contribution that may have been made for the cause. About 200 children, accompanied by a number of their mothers and the officers of the Salvation Army marched from their headquarters on South Third street to the place where the cars awaited them on the corner of West Main street and Fourth streets, where they embarked for Idlewild park. The children were dressed in gala attire and carried flags and banners, and were shouting with
joy. The Army band preceded them, carrying United States flags. The entire scene was exhilarating and delightful in the extreme.

Too much credit cannot be given the Army for this worthy enterprise. At the park the children were admitted
free, through the courtesy of Manager
Harris, and the ride on the electric cars was also free through the generosity of General Manager Harrigan.
All the places of amusement on the grounds were open to the children free of charge, and a fine luncheon was served to each child at noon. The faces of the little ones shone with excitement and happiness, and today will be a bright day to be always held by them in happy memory, thanks to the Salvation Army and the liberality of Newark citizens, who contributed to the cause.

WEDDING

Of Otis Powell and Miss Etta Vogel
Took Place Monday Evening,
July 20th.

Mr. Otis Powell, son of John Powell, a Baltimore and Ohio engineer, was married on Monday night by Rev. B.
M. O'Boylan, at 7:20 o'clock to Miss Etta Vogel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Henry Vogel, in the Catholic church, attended by Mr. Morris Barrett and Miss Josephine Staugh.

After congratulations a bountiful wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents on Patas-kala street.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell left on B. & O.
105, Tuesday morning for Cincinnati and a honeymoon trip.

A large number of handsome and beautiful presents were received by the young people, who have the best wishes of all their friends.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Sherry of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs.
Brough of Cleveland and their two children, Hilda and Lionel, and Mrs.
John Skeer of Zanesville.

Upon their return the happy couple will go to housekeeping on East Main street.

A Phenomenal Success!

The First and Opening Day of Our Mighty Mid-Summer Sale

Was certainly a most phenomenal success. Never in the history of this store have we organized a special sale that resulted in such an immense attendance as we had Saturday, the first and opening day of this sale. From the early opening hours until late at night our isles were crowded to overflowing, and many were compelled to wait for hours before getting waited upon, in spite of the many additional sales-people we had added. This week we are still better prepared to serve you, and we hope with the additional force of clerks we will be able to see you waited on promptly and satisfactorily. We thank you kindly for the patience manifested during the rush Saturday, and hope to be able to thoroughly accommo-date you in every particular during the remaining 9 days of this sale. We wish to call your atten-tion to the many choice bargains offered on our large bills. If you hav'n't seen one of them, kindly drop us a card and we will mail you one, or call at the store and get one.

COMET

May be Seen Any Night About Ten O'clock Midway Between Zenith
And the North Star.

A comet of unusual brightness may be seen any evening about 10 o'clock high up in the heavens midway between the zenith and the North star.

It was discovered during the latter part of June and has since increased over ten times in brightness.

Professor Henry C. Orton of the Ohio State university says the comet is of unusual interest, because it is probably non-periodic and may never be seen again.

It will reach a position nearest the sun August 22.

FLOWER THIEVES.

The residents of South Second St., have been greatly annoyed by some sneak thieves, who are in the habit of stealing flowers from their porches and yards. Last evening some one took a fine large hydrangea from the porch of one of the residents and carried it some distance, when it is supposed it became too heavy and they left it.
If the guilty parties are caught they will be severely dealt with.

F. D. Hall Will Buy It Back.

You assume no risk when you buy
Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. All druggists will refund your money if you are not satisfied after using it. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful remedy in use for bowel complaints and the only one that never fails. It is pleasant, safe and reliable.

NEW COLONEL

Of Fourth Regiment is C. S. Ammel—
The Lieut. Colonel is Byron L.
Barger.

The canvassing board of the Fourth infantry, Ohio National Guard, of which Chaplain John Hewitt is president and Captain Stimmel, secretary canvassed the vote from eleven companies Monday night at Columbus.

Of the 358 votes cast, 357 were for Captain C. S. Ammel for colonel and Captain Byron L. Barger for lieutenant colonel.

One vote was cast for Captain Oylor
for colonel, but could not be counted,
as he was not nominated.

The votes cast make a majority as there are hardly 600 members altogether.

No Pity Shown.
